

Workshop for Instructors of Biblical Hebrew

Fresno Pacific University, CA, USA

June 4-13, 2010

Workshop Title: Communicative Language Teaching for Biblical Hebrew

Description: A workshop focusing on Communicative Language Teaching techniques for instructors of Biblical Hebrew. Different pedagogical methods (Games, Total Physical Response, Active Drills, Role Playing, TPR Storytelling, and more) will be demonstrated and discussed. Practice drills will show how the techniques can be applied to any curriculum and/or textbook. A unique distinctive of this workshop will be its focus on upgrading the instructors' fluency in the spoken Biblical Hebrew necessary for the practice of Communicative Language Teaching. Due to the aural/oral nature of the workshop, and in order to speed up its efficacy, participants are requested to listen to 25 hours of Biblical Hebrew in preparation for the workshop.

Special Note: Participants will be eligible to stay after the course and actively observe the Beginning Biblical Hebrew course (HEB 101: Jonah) running from June 6-July 2.

Accommodations: Participants will stay in Fresno Pacific University's on-campus housing and eat their meals at the dining commons on campus. Accommodations are large suites with 5-8 rooms per suite, plus a common area which includes a kitchen and lounge area with TV. Sheets and towels are provided. Price is based on two persons per room and participants will be housed with a roommate of the same gender. For an additional fee, participants can request to have a room on their own.

Sessions: Daily, 8:30am-12:30pm; 2:30-4:30pm; plus special nightly lectures and discussions.
